To Whom It May Concern:

The purpose of this letter is to recommend Law Alsobrook to you as an exchange student during the summer of 1984.

My association with Law covers a two-year period from 1982 to the present. During this period I have found him to be consistently cooperative, hard-working, eager to please, polite, courteous, intelligent, and talented. I have never seen a single indication of a character flaw such as dishonesty, malice, or lack of integrity.

Law's main interest is art, at which he excels. In addition to his classes in art, Law is a member of the National Art Honor Society and of the Junior Arts League of Auburn-Opelika. He is also active in the band program at Auburn High School, playing bass drum during marching season and mallet percussion such as xylophone and marimba during concert season. Law is a contributor to Satori, the art and literary publication of original material by students of Auburn High School, and the Interact Club, which is a service club.

Law has a high B average at Auburn High School in a college preparatory program. He often makes the Honor Roll.

I highly recommend Law Alsobrook to you. He has excellent character and intelligence and would make an excellent exchange student.

Yours truly,

Tommy Goff

To Whom It May Concern:

As teacher of art and sponsor of the National Art Honor Society, I have taught Law Alsobrook for nearly two years. He is an outstanding art student. He has proven dependable, adaptable, flexible, persevering, creative, intelligent, and enthusiastic. He works well with others. He belongs to several school organizations, has attended Art Camp at Auburn University, and shows maturity in his planning for the future. I feel he would bring these qualities to any new experience and profit both himself and others by serving as a liaison between the two cultures. He is, besides an accomplished artist, a member of A Band since the 9th grade -- an award-winning, exceptional group of musicians.

I feel Law is an outstanding candidate for meeting new experiences, new friends, and new challenges.

Sincerely,

Carolyn H. Hartsfield
